

Misunderstanding

Karl and Luke are friends since childhood and they have been riding the motor-bike together for a long time. They were just talking like usual, until Karl brought up a motor-bike ride that is happening the next day, and they agree on 5 o'clock at a place they usually meet up at.

Luke comes to the place at 5AM, but Karl is not there, Luke is OK with it though and he waits for Karl.

It's been 1 hour and Karl is still not there, so Luke goes to buy some food and a coffee. It's been another hour, but still no Karl, It's 7AM and Luke is tired. Meanwhile Karl wakes up and reminds Luke about the motor-bike ride at 5PM. Luke, confused, says "Wait, 5PM? I am already waiting here." Karl just laughs and says "Well, wait for me, I'll be there in 30 minutes." Luke wasn't listening and thought he should've went to his house, he ate his food and rode to Karl's house. Meanwhile Karl got dressed, got on the motorcycle and rode to the place they were supposed to meet up at. Luke went the side route, while Karl went the main route. And then something happened, that wasn't supposed to happen. They passed each other. Karl arrives, but Luke is nowhere to be found, because Luke was at Karl's house, and ringing the doorbell. Karl angrily calls Luke. Karl said: "Where are you!? I'm at the pump!" Luke wasn't too happy about that: "Well I'm at your house, I thought we would meet here!" Karl calmed himself down and said "OK, wait there, I will come there!"

So Luke waits and Karl finally shows up. They fight a little and then calm down, and with huge laughter they get on the motorcycle and rode away.
